

VIG Central European Equity Investment Fund

A series HUF MONTHLY report - 2025 MARCH (made on: 03/31/2025)

INVESTMENT POLICY OF THE FUND

The aim of the Fund is to invest on the stock market of the Central and Eastern European Region. It is for investors who would like a share in the long-term performance of listed companies in the region. In the development of the portfolio of this Fund, the priority is to optimise the aggregate risk of the securities added to the Fund. In order to reduce risks, the Fund Manager exercises the highest degree of diligence when selecting the securities to be included in the portfolio. It analyses the risk factors of the securities, and supports its decisions with in-depth calculations.

The Fund purchases stocks issued by companies in Central and Eastern European region (primarily Hungary, the Czech Republic, Poland, Austria, Romania, secondarily Slovenia, Croatia, Slovakia), but it may also invest in the stocks of other developing and developed foreign companies as well as other collective investment securities. Due to the strategy of the Fund, it may also invest in assets denominated in foreign currency. The Fund may hedge some or all of its foreign currency risk using forward currency positions against the target currency. The Fund Manager has the discretionary right to reduce the foreign currency risk of the currency positions differing from the Fund's target currency, based on the market processes by concluding hedge transactions. In addition, the use of equity and index futures is permitted in order to effectively build the Fund's portfolio. To ensure liquidity, the Fund wishes to add government securities issued by member states of the EU, OECD, or G20 to its portfolio.

MARKET SUMMARY

Bears dominated the US equity markets in the first half of March, with all major stock indices falling. The total capitalization of the US stock market fell by 4,000 billion dollars, a significant part of this huge sum ending up on European markets. It is difficult to say at this stage whether America has simply undergone a correction or whether we are witnessing the start of an overseas bear market, but it is clear that the belief in American exceptionalism has not prevailed. From a macroeconomic point of view, it is not clear where the United States is going either. Growth remains strong, but there are signs of weakening, for example with slowing household consumption. Inflation is more stubborn than the Fed had expected, limiting the scope for interest rate cuts. Europe, on the other hand, has received an extraordinary boost, with many investors looking for undervalued European equities after the sell-off in the US stock market. Significant money was poured into defense sector stocks on the uncertain outcome of the Russia-Ukraine war and the expected increase in defense spending. Germany's DAX stock index rose to a historic high, supported by the acceptance of Germany's economic policy turnaround and the massive infrastructure and defense spending that it entails. Long-term bond yields fell and the euro strengthened, partly due to a weakening US dollar.

After a strong start to the year, Central European markets ended March, and the quarter as a whole, with a good performance. This time, Polish and Czech markets pulled the region higher, while Hungarian and Romanian markets underperformed. On a sectoral basis, the utilities, oil and banking sectors also performed well, while real estate and retail sectors corrected in the month. The Fund was able to outperform its benchmark index during the month, with Alior, OMV and ANY stocks in particular contributing to the good relative performance. We remain bullish on Polish equities, as reflected by the overweight at the end of the month, but we believe that the next period could be more volatile and therefore we would like to maintain a smaller overweight than in previous months, and the allocation has shifted to a more defensive stance towards telecom, retail and industrials, rather than banking.
