

INVESTMENT POLICY OF THE FUND

The Fund aims to share in the returns of the Polish stock market, and to profit from Polish economic growth through stock prices and dividend income. In accordance with the risk characteristics of equity investments, the Fund qualifies as a high-risk investment. According to the Fund Manager's intentions, the bulk of the Fund's portfolio is made up of the shares of foreign companies issued through public offerings. The primary investment targets are the securities, traded on the stock exchange or about to be listed on the stock exchange, of companies that operate in Poland or that derive a significant portion of their revenues from Poland, or whose shares are listed on the Warsaw Stock Exchange. The Fund may also invest in equities of other Central and Eastern European companies (Austria, Czech Republic, Hungary, Russia, Romania and Turkey). When developing the portfolio, the shares determine the nature of the Fund, and thus the proportion of shares that can be held in the Fund at any given time may reach the prevailing legal maximum. The Fund holds more than 30% of its assets in currencies other than the local currency (HUF).

MARKET SUMMARY

Bears dominated the US equity markets in the first half of March, with all major stock indices falling. The total capitalization of the US stock market fell by 4,000 billion dollars, a significant part of this huge sum ending up on European markets. It is difficult to say at this stage whether America has simply undergone a correction or whether we are witnessing the start of an overseas bear market, but it is clear that the belief in American exceptionalism has not prevailed. From a macroeconomic point of view, it is not clear where the United States is going either. Growth remains strong, but there are signs of weakening, for example with slowing household consumption. Inflation is more stubborn than the Fed had expected, limiting the scope for interest rate cuts. Europe, on the other hand, has received an extraordinary boost, with many investors looking for undervalued European equities after the sell-off in the US stock market. Significant money was poured into defense sector stocks on the uncertain outcome of the Russia-Ukraine war and the expected increase in defense spending. Germany's DAX stock index rose to a historic high, supported by the acceptance of Germany's economic policy turnaround and the massive infrastructure and defense spending that it entails. Long-term bond yields fell and the euro strengthened, partly due to a weakening US dollar.

After a strong start to the year, the Polish market ended March, and the quarter as a whole, with a good performance. The market was again an outperformer in the region, with the Polish and Czech markets pulling the region higher, while the Hungarian and Romanian markets underperformed. On a sectoral basis, the utilities, oil and banking sectors also performed well, while real estate and retail sectors corrected for the month. The Fund outperformed its benchmark index for the month, with Alor in particular contributing to good relative performance, while the overweight of smaller cap stocks detracted. We remain bullish on Polish equities, as reflected by the overweight at the end of the month, however we believe that the next period could be more volatile and therefore we prefer to maintain a smaller overweight than in previous months and the allocation has shifted to a more defensive stance.
