INVESTMENT POLICY OF THE FUND

MARKET SUMMARY

In Switzerland, inflation in June may have decreased by 0.1% year-on-year, according to market expectations, while on a monthly basis, data is expected to show stagnation. Due to lower inflation, the central bank once again cut the key interest rate by 25 basis points at its rate-setting meeting on June 19, bringing the benchmark rate to 0% in Switzerland. As of June 1, Swiss banks may hold central bank reserves up to a maximum of 18 times (previously 20) their minimum reserve requirement at the policy rate. Any amount above that is subject to a -0.25% interest rate. This measure aims to ensure a more efficient distribution of liquidity within the banking system and to keep money market yields aligned with the prevailing policy rate. Martin Schlegel, Governor of the Swiss National Bank, emphasized that although they are aware of the potential unintended side effects of negative interest rates, they do not rule out further rate cuts if necessary. Foreign exchange market intervention remains an important tool. Economic activity declined during June, with the KOF Swiss Economic Institute's economic barometer falling to 96.1 points from 98.6 the previous month, reaching a new low for the year. The negative developments affected the economy broadly, but the manufacturing sector is under particular pressure. In June, short-term bond yields in Switzerland increased, though they remain in negative territory. The 1-year yield rose by 12 basis points, while the 3-year yield increased by 13 basis points.
