

INVESTMENT POLICY OF THE FUND

MARKET SUMMARY

The so called "Independence Day" on April 2nd was the biggest event of the month, when Donald Trump announced the long-awaited trade tariffs. The level of the tariffs was higher than the pessimistic scenarios, leading to a significant market sell off. Post-announcement tensions were eased by news of tariffs being postponed and negotiating initiatives by various countries, but the market remained depressed. Amid growing fears of a recession in the US economy, equity markets continued to show high volatility, with bond markets seeing the 10-year US Treasury yield rise to 4.6%. Recent quarterly reports, such as weak performances from UnitedHealth Group and Pepsi, warn that defensive sectors may also be struggling. Conversely, companies that get some sort of exemption from tariffs, such as Apple, may be able to outperform. As markets fall, several European investment institutions see the prospect of a recession as growing. Bond markets are expected to follow US trends and yields could rise on inflationary pressures. The defense and infrastructure sectors may continue to be more attractive as European economic stimulus measures could further boost the performance of these sectors. The Sub-Fund achieved a positive return in April. The gold price rose to a new high of over $3500 in the middle of the month. By the end of the month, however, it had fallen 8.50%, which makes us wonder. It is possible that the gold price will fall further in the near future as it seems that the worst case political scenarios have already been priced in. Investors have become more or less used to the uncertainty created by Trump's tariff war, and the potential conflict between India and Pakistan is not having a positive impact on the price of the precious metal. In our view, the only scenario that could be considered, which the market has not yet priced in, is if US inflation is much higher than expected. For this reason, we are cautious about the coming months and do not rule out that the gold price could fall as low as $2800.
