B series HUF MONTHLY report - 2025 MAY (made on: 05/31/2025)

INVESTMENT POLICY OF THE FUND

MARKET SUMMARY

The US stock market rose in May, supported by strong reports from large technology companies and a technical rebound from low positioning. The S&P 500 index's multi-day rally and persistent buying by retail investors signaled positive sentiment, but this was not matched by institutional interest, with large investment funds tending to wait and see. The market was negatively affected by the intensification of the trade war rhetoric, Donald Trump's tariff threats and the Fed's monetary wait-and-see approach. Although service sector and labor market data remained strong, some macroeconomic indicators and the slowdown in retail consumption are cause for concern. Most GDP estimates point to a decline, and the Fed has also adopted a wait-and-see stance. In the words of the chairman of the Federal Reserve, 'waiting costs nothing'.

In Europe, stock markets, especially the German market, have outperformed, supported by algorithmic buying, a strong euro and a weak dollar. However, economic data does not paint a uniform picture: inflationary pressures in France and Germany are easing, which could give the European Central Bank room to cut interest rates, but important macroeconomic indicators have declined in several countries (e.g. France, Italy). Domestic political uncertainties in Germany, which culminated in difficulties surrounding Merz's election, caused temporary turmoil, but the markets did not react with a panic. According to interest rate market expectations, the European Central Bank will begin cutting interest rates later this year.

Despite a mixed international market sentiment, Central European regional equity markets strengthened. Investor sentiment throughout the month was influenced by U.S. economic data and global trade prospects. In Europe, cautious optimism prevailed, while in Asia, the markets were marked by more subdued movements. Following stronger performances by the Hungarian and Polish markets in the previous month, May saw outperformance by the Romanian and Czech markets, which had previously lagged within the Central European region. In May, the BUX index showed steady growth and reached a new high by the end of the month. Among the best-performing stocks were Állami Nyomda, Waberer's, and Magyar Telekom. In contrast, Duna House, Richter, and 4iG experienced more modest declines during the month.
