

INVESTMENT POLICY OF THE FUND

MARKET SUMMARY

Several factors supported the rise of the US stock market in July: the weakening of the dollar, algorithmic position building due to declining realized volatility, and the continued strong growth narrative in the technology sector, particularly among AI and semiconductor companies. The economic slowdown – for example, weak consumer spending and labor market data, as well as low private sector growth estimates by ADP Research, the global leader in employment performance measurement – did not cause panic.

The passage of the budget bill known as the "Big Beautiful Bill" provided a significant fiscal stimulus, which supported the stock market in the short term but raised concerns among bond market investors about the already controversial sustainability of public debt in the longer term. The yield on the 10-year US government bonds rose, along with the rest of the yield curve, reflecting uncertainty about the solvency of the government.

European markets showed similarly mixed performance. Favorable developments in trade negotiations supported stock indices, but bond markets saw a significant sell-off, mainly due to expectations of a slowdown in interest rate cuts by the European Central Bank. Inflation rose slightly but remains around the 2% target. The ECB's communication remained cautious, but Vice-President De Guindos warned of the dangers of the EUR/USD rate reaching 1.20, which somewhat halted the euro's appreciation.

Global stock market optimism continued in July, supported by US-Japan and US-Europe trade agreements, favorable earnings reports, and stable international sentiment. However, the dollar's turnaround in July had a significant impact on relative performance: while US markets showed strong growth in dollar terms, the BUX closed an outstanding month in forint terms but achieved more moderate results in dollar terms. The Budapest Stock Exchange reached a historic milestone during the month: the BUX index crossed the 100,000-point level for the first time and ended the month with a 3.7% increase. Masterplast, Appeninn and Graphisoft Park were among the best-performing domestic stocks, contributing to the index's strength with spectacular price increases. Among the blue chips, OTP and Richter also closed with significant gains, while Waberer's, Opus and ANY Biztonsági Nyomda performed weaker.
