

VIG Emerging Market ESG Equity Investment Fund

C series CZK MONTHLY report - 2025 SEPTEMBER (made on: 09/30/2025)

INVESTMENT POLICY OF THE FUND

The aim of the Fund is to share in the performance of companies benefiting from the growth of developing economies, through share price increases or dividend payments of listed companies, either directly (through investments in individual stocks) or indirectly (through ETFs or mutual Funds), while taking environmental, social and governance (ESG) criteria into account. The Fund does not directly invest in shares of Chinese companies within the emerging market universe. The geographical distribution is partly determined by the MSCI Emerging Markets Ex China Index, in which, besides a significant Asian (ex China) focus, European and Latin American companies are also heavily represented, and partly by the MSCI World with Emerging Markets (EM) Exposure Index, in which American and European companies represent the greatest weight. The use of stock and index futures is permitted in order to hedge and effectively build the Fund's portfolio. In selecting the stocks, the Fund pays special attention to the ESG compliance of individual companies; therefore, besides analysing financial factors, portfolio managers also consider environmental, social and governance factors in the investment decision process. The Fund Manager seeks to build a portfolio in which the positive ESG characteristics of companies prevail, i.e. companies with high ESG scores are overrepresented in the portfolio as compared to companies with low ESG scores.

The environmental criterion covers the elements where a business interacts with the environment. This includes, for example, the energy usage, waste management, and emission of pollutants of corporations, as well as the preservation of natural resources. Social criteria include all relations of a corporation with external partners, customers and internal employees. Corporate governance criteria include the legal conditions affecting the reliable operation of a corporation.

Due to the strategy of the Fund, it may also invest in assets denominated in foreign currency. The Fund may hedge some or all of its foreign currency risk using forward currency positions against the target currency, i.e. the settlement currency of the benchmark (USD). The Fund Manager has a discretionary right to reduce the foreign currency risk of positions denominated in a currency other than the target currency, depending on market developments, by entering into hedge transactions. In addition, the use of equity and index futures is permitted in order to effectively build the Fund's portfolio. The Fund records its assets in Hungarian forint (HUF).

MARKET SUMMARY

In September, the prospect of a soft landing for the U.S. economy emerged once again. Poor labor market and retail data confirmed market expectations of interest rate cuts. Meanwhile, disinflation data allowed the Fed to restart the cycle of interest rate cuts without causing panic. The inflationary impact of Trump's tariffs has yet to materialize, allowing the Fed to "overlook" this risk. Slowing growth, easing inflationary pressures, and looser monetary policy created a favorable environment for a stock market rally and a rotation into previously lagging sectors as the year ended. However, the mood was not so rosy in European markets. Weak macroeconomic indicators discouraged risk-taking. Political uncertainty further exacerbated the situation, with the threat of a government crisis in France, for example, increasing volatility. Some positive news came from the reduction in U.S. car tariffs, which improved the outlook for German exports. Inflation stabilized at around 2%, prompting the ECB to leave its key interest rates unchanged. The market does not anticipate further easing. This strengthened the euro in early September, which is bad news for European companies that produce for export markets. The key question for October is whether inflation will continue to moderate. This could stabilize bond markets and provide support for equities, although weak growth could hinder progress.

Emerging stock markets had a strong month in September, with most indices breaking out of their late summer sideways trend. The favorable global economic situation and the weak dollar provided support for the rise, but September was also a quieter month from a geopolitical perspective. Weakening US labor market data reinforced market expectations that the US interest rate cutting cycle would continue, which also boosted optimism. Among the major regions, Asia (excluding China) and Latin America rose neck and neck in dollar terms, but the South African stock market index also performed well. One of the largest members of the emerging markets, the Indian stock market closed with a performance of around zero, but the South Korean and Taiwanese stock indices excelled with gains of around 6-7%, and the Brazilian stock market, the largest component of the Latin American region, closed similarly. The South African stock market index was the winner of the month, strengthening by 10% in dollar terms. This time, one of this year's best-performing regions, the Central European market lagged, mainly due to the weakness of Polish and Hungarian stocks, but with the rise of the Czech index, this block also managed to close the month in positive territory.
