

INVESTMENT POLICY OF THE FUND

The purpose of the investment fund is to create an equity fund that can profit from long-term demographic changes and the related changes in consumer habits. The Fund aims to achieve long-term capital growth by investing in global companies that can benefit from the growth and aging of the population, the social and economic changes associated with a healthy lifestyle, urbanisation, the expansion of the emerging markets' middle class and the global economic trends stemming from these social changes, as well as the changing consumption habits driven by such demographic changes.

The Fund aims to achieve its objectives through equity-type instruments, primarily exchange-traded funds (ETFs), equities and open-ended public investment funds. The Fund takes a forward-looking approach and actively seeks companies in industries that can benefit from the long-term global demographic changes and related changes in consumer habits. Investments are made in companies that have strong fundamentals and are well positioned for long-term value creation and competitive advantage due to demographic and social changes. Trends related to demographic and social changes are long-term processes that go beyond normal economic cycles and are generally global and affect the entire world. Consequently, the Fund is not subject to any geographical restrictions. Since the Fund aims to profit from long-term growth and has significant exposure to the equity market, we recommend the Fund to investors who want to invest in the longer term and have a relatively high willingness to take risk.

MARKET SUMMARY

During September, the scenario of a soft landing for the US economy came to the forefront once again. Worse-than-expected labor market and retail data confirmed market expectations of interest rate cuts, while disinflation data gave the Fed the green light to restart the cycle of interest rate cuts without causing any panic. The inflationary impact of Trump's tariffs has not yet materialized, so the Fed was able to "overlook" this risk. Slowing growth, easing inflationary pressures, and looser monetary policy combined to create a favorable environment for the stock market rally to spread and paved the way for a rotation into previously lagging sectors as the end of the year approached. Defensive sectors were still relative underperformers in September, but the healthcare sector saw a significant rise at the end of the month. Earlier, Donald Trump announced that he would impose a 100% tariff on imported branded and patented drugs. Initially, the markets braced for the worst. But as the details emerged, it became clear that the largest US players, such as Pfizer, Merck, Lilly, and J&J, were largely protected thanks to their significant domestic production. In addition, Pfizer entered into a landmark agreement with the government to reduce Medicaid prices in exchange for tariff exemptions. This alleviated regulatory fears and sent a strong signal that other companies could enter into similar agreements, giving the market confidence that the sector may have a bright future ahead. Currently, approximately 40% of the Fund is invested in the healthcare sector, so any further positive developments in this sector could have a significant impact on the Fund's share price.
