MONTHLY report - 2025 OCTOBER (made on: 10/31/2025)

INVESTMENT POLICY OF THE FUND

The Fund aims to share in the returns of the Polish stock market, and to profit from Polish economic growth through stock prices and dividend income. In accordance with the risk characteristics of equity investments, the Fund qualifies as a high-risk investment. According to the Fund Manager's intentions, the bulk of the Fund's portfolio is made up of the shares of foreign companies issued through public offerings. The primary investment targets are the securities, traded on the stock exchange or about to be listed on the stock exchange, of companies that operate in Poland or that derive a significant portion of their revenues from Poland, or whose shares are listed on the Warsaw Stock Exchange. The Fund may also invest in equities of other Central and Eastern European companies (Austria, Czech Republic, Hungary, Russia, Romania and Turkey). When developing the portfolio, the shares determine the nature of the Fund, and thus the proportion of shares that can be held in the Fund at any given time may reach the prevailing legal maximum. The Fund holds more than 30% of its assets in currencies other than the local currency (HUF).

MARKET SUMMARY

In October, US capital markets continued to ride the AI wave, while the Fed's expected final interest rate cut this year and the end of quantitative tightening pumped further liquidity into the system. In addition to the dominance of the technology sector, the minor trade truce reached at the Trump-Xi meeting—a reduction in tariffs from 57% to 47% and a one-year easing of rare earth exports—came as a positive surprise, strengthening the dollar and growth prospects. At the same time, the threat of a government shutdown, record data center investments, and Fed Chairman Jerome Powell's caution regarding the December cut dampened the performance of traditional sectors. Bond yields moderated only slightly at longer maturities, while the short end saw a noticeable repricing of the interest rate curve. Europe remained in the grip of political and economic uncertainty: the initial optimism surrounding the formation of the French government proved short-lived, with banking sector stocks falling particularly sharply. Inflation rose slightly in September, but the ECB's decision to keep its key interest rate unchanged raised hopes of easing. Positive signs include a surge in car sales (especially hybrids imported from China) and stable unemployment. On the other hand, weak German industrial production and high energy prices linked to sanctions against Russia continue to put pressure on the continent's economy.
The upward trend continued on global stock markets in October, with the Polish stock exchange performing particularly well in the Central European region. Investor sentiment was shaped by the US Federal Reserve's interest rate decision, flash reports from the technology sector, and expectations regarding China. Overall, Europe saw moderate but positive movements, while the MSCI World Index, which tracks the performance of large- and mid-cap companies in developed markets, rose 2% in US dollar terms. The WIG20 index, which tracks the shares of the 20 largest and most liquid companies on the Warsaw Stock Exchange, performed even better, rising 5.8% in zloty terms and 3.9% in dollar terms, reaching a new high during the month. The best-performing companies included the silver and copper mining company KGHM Polska Miedź, the oil company Orlen, and the infrastructure contractor Budimex, all of which saw double-digit price increases. Among the weaker performers were clothing company CCC, game developer CD Projekt, and retail chain Żabka Group, which showed moderate declines. Overall, the Polish stock market posted a steady rise in October, supported by growing investor confidence in the region.
