

VIG Poland Large Cap Equity Fund

HUF-RP series MONTHLY report - 2025 DECEMBER (made on: 12/31/2025)
HUF

INVESTMENT POLICY OF THE FUND

The Fund aims to share in the returns of the Polish stock market, and to profit from Polish economic growth through stock prices and dividend income. In accordance with the risk characteristics of equity investments, the Fund qualifies as a high-risk investment. According to the Fund Manager's intentions, the bulk of the Fund's portfolio is made up of the shares of foreign companies issued through public offerings. The primary investment targets are the securities, traded on the stock exchange or about to be listed on the stock exchange, of companies that operate in Poland or that derive a significant portion of their revenues from Poland, or whose shares are listed on the Warsaw Stock Exchange. The Fund may also invest in equities of other Central and Eastern European companies (Austria, Czech Republic, Hungary, Russia, Romania and Turkey). When developing the portfolio, the shares determine the nature of the Fund, and thus the proportion of shares that can be held in the Fund at any given time may reach the prevailing legal maximum. The Fund holds more than 30% of its assets in currencies other than the local currency (HUF).

MARKET SUMMARY

The US stock markets showed restraint in December. Although lower inflation data in November initially sparked widespread buying, the Fed's cautious communication quickly dampened enthusiasm. Weak economic data did not support the expectation of a January interest rate cut. If disinflation continues, easing may occur, but it is not expected to happen quickly. Corporate reports are mixed. Sports equipment manufacturers have suffered from weakness in China, while logistics companies have benefited from cost-cutting measures. However, housing market builders continue to face challenges. As Christmas approached, small-cap stocks once again outperformed large-caps, with the Russell 2000 index significantly outperforming the S&P 500 in December. Bond yields have remained stable, and core inflation data may confirm the disinflationary trend. Investors now view AI repricing as the greatest risk for next year, while fierce competition among major companies continues. The eurozone showed signs of stagnation in December, with weak growth and stable inflation. The EU's Ukrainian financing package, implemented through joint borrowing, could bring short-term stability to the neighboring conflict. Bond yields are stable, and the euro is holding its own against the dollar. Markets are cautious. Services are keeping the economy alive while manufacturing is in recession. Analysts see potential in the relatively cheap banking sector for next year.

Global stock markets continued to rise in December, supported by the Federal Reserve's interest rate cut, which was in line with expectations. Regional stock indices performed exceptionally well in the last month of the year, accompanied by a favorable market environment even without the weakening of the dollar. Within the region, the Polish stock market was among the best performers during the month: the index rose by 6.1% in zloty terms, while in dollar terms it achieved a return of nearly 7.8%, supported by the strengthening of the zloty. The best performing stock on the index was KGHM Polska, which rose more than 32% during the month, mainly due to significant increases in gold, silver and copper prices. The clothing company LPP also recorded a significant increase in its share price on the back of favorable quarterly results, while Pepco, which operates in the same sector, was also among the best-performing stocks. However, the worst performer during the month was CCC, also in the clothing sector, while PGE SA and CD Projekt also saw their share prices decline.
