

VIG Hungarian Money Market Investment Fund

I series HUF MONTHLY report - 2026 FEBRUARY (made on: 02/28/2026)

INVESTMENT POLICY OF THE FUND

The Fund's aim is to function as a stable, low-risk form of investment, while providing investors with higher returns than they could expect from bank deposits. In order to ensure liquidity, the Fund intends primarily to hold in its portfolio government bonds and discount treasury bills issued by the Government Debt Management Agency (ÁKK) and bonds issued by the National Bank of Hungary (MNB). The weighted average maturity (WAM) of the assets in the portfolio may not exceed 6 months and the weighted average life (WAL) of the assets may not exceed 12 months. The Fund may hold in its portfolio low-risk debt securities issued by banks and companies, which are expected to provide higher returns than government securities and are denominated primarily in HUF, but also in other currencies. The Fund may also invest to a limited extent in government securities or guaranteed bonds issued by the OECD or a G20 country, or any debt security issued or guaranteed by the central government or a regional or local government or the central bank of any EU Member State, or by the European Union, the European Central Bank or the European Investment Bank. The weighted average maturity (WAM) of the assets in the portfolio may not exceed 6 months and the weighted average life (WAL) of the assets may not exceed 12 months. In addition, the remaining time to maturity of each security is a maximum of 2 years and a maximum of 397 days until the nearest interest-rate determination date. The Fund may also keep its liquid assets in bank deposits. The fund may hold a limited amount of foreign currency assets in its portfolio, but only subject to the full hedging of currency risk.

VIG Moneymarket Fund is not a guaranteed investment. The risk of loss of the principal is to be borne by the investor. An investment in VIG Moneymarket Fund is different from an investment in deposits, with particular reference to the risk that the principal invested in VIG Moneymarket Fund is capable of fluctuation. VIG Moneymarket Fund does not rely on external support for guaranteeing the liquidity of the fund or stabilising the NAV per unit or share.

MARKET SUMMARY

In February, Hungarian inflation may have fallen further according to market expectations, with the Hungarian Central Statistical Office possibly recording annual price growth below 2%. At its February rate-setting meeting, the Hungarian National Bank reduced the base rate by 25 basis points for the first time in a long period, bringing it to 6.25%. Communication was somewhat more hawkish: at the press conference following the decision, they emphasized that this does not mark the start of a rate-cutting cycle, and that decisions on the policy rate will continue to be made on a month-by-month, data-driven basis. The rate cut did not come as a surprise; the market had anticipated the decision, and as a result the EUR/HUF exchange rate did not show significant movement. According to the detailed GDP data for the fourth quarter of 2025, agriculture and construction somewhat supported economic growth, while the performance of the services sector has begun to weaken. The carry-over effect remains weak and does not support higher growth targets for 2026. During the month, short-term yields declined slightly. The 3-month benchmark yield fell from 6.10% to 5.99%, the 6-month benchmark yield from 6.05% to 5.97%, and the 12-month benchmark yield from 5.97% to 5.91%. Although the increase in oil prices due to the Iranian conflict may pose a risk to the inflation path, we do not expect the current situation to persist over the long term; therefore, we continue to maintain higher duration in the fund.
