MARKET SUMMARY

The performance of bond markets continued to be shaped by the Iranian conflict that broke out at the end of February and has been ongoing ever since. Rising global oil prices have intensified inflation concerns, leading to an increase in bond yields. In April, Polish bond yields continued to rise. Compared to the beginning of the month, yields increased by 13 basis points at the three-year maturity, 27 basis points at the five-year maturity, and 3 basis points at the ten-year maturity. The market is currently pricing in two rate hikes for 2026. At its rate-setting meeting in early April, the Polish central bank left the policy rate unchanged at 3.75%. Central bank governor Glapiński remains convinced that the current energy crisis differs from the one four years ago, as commodity prices have not risen nearly as sharply as in 2022, and domestic consumption is also weaker. However, in his statement, he continued to urge caution. According to preliminary data, inflation rose from 3.0% to 3.2% in April, mainly driven by increasing household energy prices, while the rise in food prices continued to slow. Industrial production grew by 9.4% in March 2026, and retail sales were also strong, posting a year-on-year increase of 8.7%. Due to the geopolitical situation, uncertainty remains high, and the outcome of the war is still unclear. Short-term yields are currently around the policy rate, which could represent an attractive level if the conflict is resolved in the short term.
