CZKh-RP series MONTHLY report - 2026 MAY (made on: 05/31/2026)

INVESTMENT POLICY OF THE FUND

The Fund aims to profit from the returns on global equity market investments through stock prices and dividend income. According to the intentions of the Fund Manager, the bulk of the Fund's portfolio is made up of shares of foreign companies issued through public offerings, but the Fund may also invest in shares issued by Hungarian companies. The proportion of shares that can be held in the Fund at any given time may reach the prevailing legal maximum. The Fund Manager has the option, at its own discretion, of hedging all or part of its foreign exchange risks using forward currency positions subject to observing the applicable legal requirements.

MARKET SUMMARY

Over the past month, global capital markets have revolved around two themes: one was the further acceleration of the AI infrastructure investment cycle, and the other was the energy and geopolitical risks associated with the war in Iran. The artificial intelligence story drove the semiconductor sector up at a strong pace, with the Philadelphia Semiconductor Index (an index of the 30 largest companies listed on U.S. stock exchanges) has only risen this much above its 200-day moving average in 1995 and at the peak of the 2000 bubble. Analysts are consistently revising AI companies' capex forecasts upward, yet an increasing portion of this financing is coming from debt. Meanwhile, the energy price shock is severely worsening the macroeconomic picture: inflation data for April and May were consistently higher than expected. Expectations of interest rate cuts have faded, and market participants now consider an interest rate hike more likely. A June interest rate hike by the European Central Bank is becoming increasingly likely, while wage dynamics have remained under control for now. The auto sector, which is key to the economy, presents a mixed picture: total sales have been on an upward trend for three months, and the EV market is expanding. The technical ratification of the EU– US trade agreement took place at the end of May, but the actual tariff rates in several sectors are still a matter of debate.

The Fund posted a positive return in May and outperformed the benchmark index. With only minor interruptions, U.S. markets rose steadily throughout May. For now, it appears that investors have become completely immune to the war in Iran. Trump announced almost every week that a peace deal was just days away, only for bombings to follow once again. With one or two exceptions, corporate earnings reports were very strong; all the largest-cap companies, with the exception of Microsoft, reported better-than-expected results. Although inflation was consistently higher than the central bank's 2% target, and oil prices couldn't drop below $90, this didn't affect the stock markets. The expectations generated by the market overrode everything else. During the month, we sold Tesla shares when they reached an important technical level, and we bought Kimberly-Clark shares and gold. We bought U.S. 10-year Treasury notes when the 10-year bond yield rose above 4.65%, and we sold them later in the month when the yield fell below 4.50% (with bonds, yield and price move in opposite directions). At the end of the month, the Fund was slightly underweight compared to the benchmark index.
