

INVESTMENT POLICY OF THE FUND

The purpose of the investment fund is to create an equity fund that can profit from long-term demographic changes and the related changes in consumer habits. The Fund aims to achieve long-term capital growth by investing in global companies that can benefit from the growth and aging of the population, the social and economic changes associated with a healthy lifestyle, urbanisation, the expansion of the emerging markets' middle class and the global economic trends stemming from these social changes, as well as the changing consumption habits driven by such demographic changes.

The Fund aims to achieve its objectives through equity-type instruments, primarily exchange-traded funds (ETFs), equities and open-ended public investment funds. The Fund takes a forward-looking approach and actively seeks companies in industries that can benefit from the long-term global demographic changes and related changes in consumer habits. Investments are made in companies that have strong fundamentals and are well positioned for long-term value creation and competitive advantage due to demographic and social changes. Trends related to demographic and social changes are long-term processes that go beyond normal economic cycles and are generally global and affect the entire world. Consequently, the Fund is not subject to any geographical restrictions. Since the Fund aims to profit from long-term growth and has significant exposure to the equity market, we recommend the Fund to investors who want to invest in the longer term and have a relatively high willingness to take risk.

MARKET SUMMARY

In July, the Fund's focus areas were among the beneficiaries of the tech correction. A significant portion of the capital flowing out of AI-exposed segments moved into defensive and value-oriented sectors, resulting in the equally weighted U.S. index posting its best-ever relative monthly performance compared to tech-focused indices, while the financial sector posted a 6.2% gain, marking its best month since January 2025. Defensive positioning, which had consistently underperformed in recent months, finally worked in the portfolio's favor in July. In the healthcare sector—which represents the Fund's largest thematic weighting—a significant development took place. On July 1, Medicare's GLP-1 Bridge Program launched, marking the first time in Medicare's history that coverage has been extended specifically to drugs used to treat obesity: eligible beneficiaries can access these medications for a monthly copay of $50, and the program provides coverage for approximately 20 million Americans. This could drive growth in the overall treatment market, and the two market-leading pharmaceutical companies could both benefit at the industry level. The financial sector was one of the best-performing segments of the month. Rising long-term yields supported interest rate spreads, and major banks reporting in mid-July noted strong capital market activity. Reports indicated that advisory and underwriting fee revenues at leading investment banks grew rapidly. The return of initial public offerings (IPOs) is directly reflected in the sector's earnings. During the month, we opened a small position in an ETF holding biotechnology stocks within the healthcare sector.
