

INVESTMENT POLICY OF THE FUND

MARKET SUMMARY

The US-Iran memorandum reached in June was originally intended to open a 60-day negotiation period aimed at ending the fighting and reopening the Strait of Hormuz. There was still some optimism at the beginning of August, with efforts to maintain the ceasefire through mediation by neighboring countries. However, by mid-month it had become clear that no meaningful progress had been made, and shipping through the strait therefore remained restricted. By the end of August, oil prices had risen back to around USD 90 per barrel, once again posing upside risks to bond yields. In Switzerland, however, bond yields ended the month broadly unchanged. Swiss inflation rose from 0.4% to 0.8% in August, driven primarily by higher energy prices. Core inflation increased only marginally, from 0.3% to 0.4%, suggesting that the rise in energy prices has not yet filtered through to the prices of other goods and services. The next monetary policy meeting is scheduled for September; however, given the broadly stable inflation environment, there is currently no clear need to begin raising interest rates. Economic activity improved, with the KOF Swiss Economic Institute's economic barometer rising to 106.7 points.
