The aim of the investment fund is to give investors access to the Polish bond market and to function as a relatively stable, medium-risk investment already medium term, offering our customers stable real returns without the need to tie up their savings for a fixed period. The fund primarily invests into Zloty denominated Polish government bonds but the portfolio manager has some room to use other fixed income investments. We aim to maximise returns with the given risk level. Our investment decisions are based on fundamental research extended by technical research while we also take into account global market sentiment. Expected shifts in the yield curve based on our macro expectations are at the core of our investment process. Risk/return characteristics are also considered when we select suitable and safe investments. We aim to totally hedge any currency risk in the fund.

MARKET SUMMARY:

In February, we saw a strong rise in yields on the Polish bond market. Yields closed higher by 22 basis points at 3-year maturity, 32 basis points at 5-year maturity and 45 basis points at 10-year maturity, thus increasing the slope of the yield curve. The sell-off was mainly due to the globally rising inflation expectations. Moving on to economic data, Polish GDP contracted by 2.8% in 2020. However, according to the February survey the economic growth is expected to be 3.7% in 2021 and 4.7% in 2022. GDP growth in the first quarter was reduced from -1.9% to -2%, and growth is expected to be 8.9% in the second quarter. Better-than-expected macro data would justify higher yields, but they are offset by global liquidity and QE programs. Year-on-year inflation accelerated to 2.7% in January, well above expectations. The government has allowed retail stores to reopen from February 1, so consumption could pick up again, which also could have an impact on prices. The Purchasing Managers' Index rose from 51.9 in January to 53.4 in February, exceeding market expectations. New orders started to grow strongly, due to exports. Industrial production grew 0.9% in the first month of the year, outperforming market expectations by 0.6%. As for general government, in January the government generated a surplus of PLN 6,645.4 million, bringing the 12-month rolling budget deficit to 3.53% of GDP.
