MARKET SUMMARY

The Polish bond market performed strongly in July, with bonds rallying. Yields fell 78 basis points on the three-year maturity and 99 basis points on the five- and ten-year maturities. The strength in the bond market was mainly due to a slowdown in inflation and a fall in purchasing managers' indices. According to preliminary data, inflation in July remained at an annualized rate of 15.5%, ending slightly below market expectations. Although inflation may still be fueled by further increases in energy prices, we may be close to the end of the Polish rate hike cycle as signs of an economic slowdown are already visible. Thus, in July, the Polish central bank raised its policy rate by only 50 basis points instead of the expected 75 basis points, to 6.5%. The Purchasing Managers' Index also fell further, with the manufacturing index falling to 42.1 from 44.4 the previous month. This is the third consecutive month of decline in the index. Output and new orders fell as high inflation and an uncertain economic environment weighed on demand. The slowdown is also reflected in GDP forecasts, with some respondents to a Bloomberg poll in July now expecting a recession in the next year with a 53% probability. Industrial production grew by 10.4% in June, below market expectations of 11.2%. As for the public finances, the state generated a surplus of PLN 15,679.6 million in the June, bringing the 12-month rolling budget deficit to 0.95% of GDP.
