MARKET SUMMARY

The Polish bond market performed weakly again in September, with the yield curve rising. Yields were up 55 basis points at three-year maturity, 70 basis points at five-year maturity and 101 basis points at ten-year maturity. At the rate-setting meeting in early September, the central bank raised the policy rate by 25 basis points to 6.75%. The risk of a slowdown in the economy plays a prominent role in decisions to raise interest rates, which was reflected in the tone of the recent communication. It is already apparent that the end of the tightening cycle may be near, unless the European energy crisis leads to a further material increase in risk aversion for the region's assets. Preliminary data showed that year-on-year inflation in September edged up again to 17.2% from 16.1% in the previous month, finishing above market expectations. Inflation was further fueled by increases in energy and fuel prices, but food prices also rose sharply in September. Further price rises are expected in the coming months, with inflation peaking in the first quarter of 2023. According to a September Bloomberg poll, the Polish economy is expected to grow by 4% in 2022, 1.3% in 2023 and 3.3% in 2024. The growth forecast for the third quarter has been revised down to 2.6% from 2.7%. The purchasing managers' index bounced back, with the manufacturing index rising to 43 from 40.9 the previous month. Output and new orders fell again as high inflation and an uncertain economic environment weighed on demand. Industrial production grew by 10.9% in August, beating market expectations of 10%. As for public finances, the state generated a deficit of PLN 7 132.8 million in August, bringing the 12-month rolling budget deficit to 1.5% of GDP.
