

INVESTMENT POLICY OF THE FUND

MARKET SUMMARY

As expected, the US fiscal crisis was resolved by the end of May. To an outsider, it was odd that such a thing could happen again after 2011, when everyone knew full well that the US would not declare bankruptcy. If it did, it would have unforeseen consequences that no one would dare risk.

The Fed raised the base rate by 25 basis points to 5.25%. The wording of the Fed's statement at the post-raise briefing was much the same as that used at the top of the rate hike cycle in 2006, deleting the phrase "FOMC expects further rate hikes to be necessary", but there was no mention of the possibility of easing, and the balance could still tip towards tightening.

In Hungary, although falling, inflation is still very high. According to the official KSH release, inflation was 24% in May, more than 1% lower than the previous month. What was different from previous months was that the National Bank lowered the top of the interest rate band from 25% to 19.50%. While the official base rate is 13% and the overnight 1-day rate is 17%, the lowering of the top of the band itself could be a guide for the months ahead. The MNB president said at the post-cut briefing that if inflation numbers continue to fall, a 100 basis point per month rate cut could be expected. The forint did not weaken much on the announcement, indicating that the market had already priced in the news. Let's not forget that foreign investors still have access to the MNB's 17% weekly deposit, which makes the forint very attractive. Let us also note that the forint yield is still significantly high compared to the surrounding countries.

The fund ended the month of May with a positive return. Equity markets were mostly slightly negative in local currency terms, with no major divergence, although Greek and Turkish equities gained a lot in the days following the elections. Forint money market exposures closed in positive territory in line with the yield environment, but funds holding longer-dated Hungarian government bonds performed similarly well. In May, absolute return funds held by portfolios delivered positive returns. Equities remain underweight relative to the long-term target weight, which boosted relative performance in May. At the end of May, we reduced the weight of emerging market equity funds, allocating resources to a forint money market fund.
