

INVESTMENT POLICY OF THE FUND

MARKET SUMMARY

Global growth is running below-trend this year but considering the size and extent of recent headwinds (real rate shock, monetary tightening) is holding up relatively well. Underneath this resilient global picture there continues to be a marked divergence between strong services and weak manufacturing sectors. As a result, manufacturing-intensive economies like China and Germany are struggling while more services-based ones like the United States are outperforming. We still see a disinflationary environment. While goods inflation has fallen notably, services inflation is still running high across a wide range of economies.

The Fund ended the month of July with a positive return. The main reason for this was that the vast majority of the Fund's investments performed well in both local currency and Hungarian forint. The prices of equities, mostly traded on US stock exchanges, and European equities rose, as did the prices of emerging market government bonds in foreign currencies in general. Among the exceptions, perhaps, were government securities of advanced economies, where a slight dip in prices was visible. The trend in commodity markets was also more upwards. Absolute return investments in portfolios also performed well during July.

During the month, we further reduced the Fund's exposure to Hungarian government bonds and instead bought developed country government bonds. The reasons for this were twofold, firstly because we no longer considered Hungarian government bonds to be attractive and secondly because we wanted to give the Fund greater currency exposure. We maintained our equity positions during the month, which meant that we kept equities in developed market companies close to our long-term target levels, while we continued to underweight emerging market equities.
