MARKET SUMMARY

In March, Polish bonds experienced a weak month: the yield curve moved higher, yields on the 3 year maturity increased by 14-, on the 5 year maturity 18 -, and on the 10 year maturity 19 basis points. At the beginning of the month, the Polish central bank kept the base rate unchanged, so it remained at 5.75% in line with market expectations. The communication from the central bank governor remained hawkish. However, the expected inflation for this year has been revised downwards from the previous 4.6% to 3.6%. Two scenarios were outlined regarding inflation: if anti-inflation measures are prolonged, inflation could reach the central bank's target next year; however, if anti-inflation are removed, inflation could return to 8% in the second half of the year and only gradually reach the central bank's target in 2026. Adam Glapinski, governor of the central bank expects inflation to evolve somewhere between these two scenarios. Moving on with the economic data, in February, the pace of price increases slowed to 1.9%, falling below market expectations of 2.2%. The Purchasing Managers' Index (PMI) increased to 48 in March from the previous month's 47.9. The index is still below the 50 threshold, indicating a contraction, as both output and new orders continued to decline due to the uncertain economic environment. Industrial production posted a growth of 3.3% in the second month of the year, thus arrived above market expectations. As for the state budget, the government generated a deficit of 20,523.1 million PLN in the second month of the year, bringing the 12-month rolling budget deficit to 2.7% of GDP.
